

Stonetown TV: a new advertising option for local businesses

Though the mediums have changed over time, what hasn't changed is the importance of advertising to businesses and organizations. Print advertising, radio, websites, and social media are all options to consider. Now, thanks to St. Marys tech company GoToGeeks, your message can now be displayed on TV monitors throughout the Stonetown.

PJ Gorton, owner of GoToGeeks, explains the concept of Stonetown TV.

"StonetownTV is a network of televisions that broadcasts interesting content like local news and sports, funny videos, interesting facts, jokes, and community messages or events. These televisions are placed in restaurants, waiting rooms and other ideal locations in St. Marys and area so you can watch at your convenience while waiting for an appointment, getting your hair cut, or eating breakfast. We currently have TV's at Sunset Diner and Glo Hair Salon with plans to have many more go up throughout the summer."

At present, PJ estimates that he has 40 minutes of rotating content on the TV monitors. The display changes weekly so there is always something new for viewers. Starting this week, the St. Marys Independent Newspaper will also be providing local content on Stonetown TV.

With a captive audience such as restaurant patrons and hair-styling customers, Gorton feels that advertisers should get excellent quality views on the Stonetown TV screens.
